50

Celebrating 50 Years
Juilliard Drama

Welcome to the Juilliard Drama Division's 50th anniversary season.

In the theater, we make things together we could never make by ourselves. All through this 50th anniversary year we will all come together—actors, writers, directors, teachers, staff, alumni, patrons, families, friends—in celebration, in remembrance, and in gratitude. We will look back and look ahead as we rededicate ourselves and begin to chart a course for the next 50 years.

Our art is about the enactment of change. It is easier to enact change than live it. That is true for individuals and for institutions. The Drama Division is changing. It should. It must. But as we change we have to have the discernment to see and the tenacity to hold fast to the best principles that have made us who we are. We in the Drama Division hold fast to our dedication to craft and our dedication to telling the story of what it's like to be a human being. We believe you can't do the latter without the former.

Fifty years is not very long if we measure in years. But measured in accumulated experience—the journeys, the discoveries, the revelations, the heartbreak, the faith, the joy—these 50 years are almost infinite in the amount of lived life. Yet, so much lies ahead. There are stories not yet told, voices not yet heard on our stages. That is the work of the next 50 years and that work starts now.

Some of us will be here for the 100th anniversary. Some of us will not. But we will all be making something together we could not make by ourselves. By teaching, learning, and performing, we are all part of this great legacy of craft and humanity.

Welcome to our 50th year. Let us celebrate together.

These fully mounted productions provide the actors with a bridge to their life in the profession and an opportunity to collaborate with professional directors and designers. They are asked to put into practice all they have learned, testing their mettle by working in various styles in a variety of plays, coming up against the best authors in the theatrical canon, classical, and contemporary.

On August 26, 2005, just before Suzan-Lori Parks was scheduled to interview the playwright August Wilson, he told the press he was dying of cancer. Later that afternoon, Hurricane Katrina devastated the Gulf Coast. In an essay called "The New Black Math," Parks wrote that it felt like Judgment Day. In an instant, the African-American community was hit by dual crises: the coming death of a revered elder and the governmental neglect that left thousands stranded for days in Louisiana's Superdome or drowned in the streets. Parks says that a "black play" is born at such a moment. It is "fierce...doesn't forget the numerous hard times of the past and those going on right now...and knows about the black hole of history and isn't afraid of going there."

Parks' Father Comes Home From the Wars meets this definition. It looks unsparingly at the calamity of African-American slavery at the height of the U.S. Civil War. Hero, one of the play's slaves, is given an impossible choice: he is promised his freedom if he fights with his master on the Confederate side – the side dedicated to his continued enslavement. In Hero's dilemma, Parks outlines slavery's psychic violence (beyond its physical and sexual torture), and the grave cost of being forced to wage war on your own humanity. The text describes the pain of misplacing oneself; being broken inside; and amputations of body and soul.

Parks also widens her lens, depicting Hero's journey and homecoming in epic dimensions. The play is loosely based on the Greek classic The Odyssey, which you can hear in the characters' names: Homer (The Odyssey's author); Odyssey Dog; Ulysses (Odysseus's Roman name); and Penny (his long-suffering wife, Penelope). Grafting the particulars of African-American slavery onto this mythic tale, Parks explores the nature of freedom itself. Who do I belong to? How is my worth to be measured? The Less Than Desirable Slaves and The Runaway Slaves function like a Greek Chorus, narrating the play. And echoing The Odyssey's multi-part structure, Father Comes Home From the Wars will ultimately include nine other parts that track these characters' descendants to the present.

Parks recently told an interviewer at Signature Theatre that she was born down the road from Abraham Lincoln's Kentucky birthplace. She did so with a smile, clearly relishing their shared origins. Indeed, Lincoln figures heavily in her work: he appears in, among other plays, The America Play; Topdog/Underdog; and Father Comes Home From the Wars, where the fate of Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation is in question. But when we listen closely, we hear that Parks is as interested in the antebellum period as the long shadow it still casts today. Slavery's fist continues to grip us. America's struggle to finally break free from it is an epic one.
